I will mention a few of the improvements under headway, and which are a credit to the projectors:

pearance, and would be a feature of admiration in any town. The bank and two fine stores take up the ground floor, while the opera house occupies the upper stories. The seating capacity of the house is 800, and every seat in the house will be choice, the 25 cent and 50 cent seats being as well located for viewing the stage as the $1 seats. The scenery, now about finished, will be as fine as any in the territory. The decoration of the bouse is in the hands of Mr. George J. Bywater.

Two other large buildings are under headway, and will be ready for occupancy in about three months; one on Main street being erected by Campbell & Morrell, and the other on Second street, being built by Robert Murdock. Each building will be four stories high, including the basements, which are built of ilmestone, the other three stories being of Cache valley brick, said to equal any brick made in the territory. The Campbell & Morrell building will cost $11,000; the Murdock building $13,000. Campbell & Morrell will occupy the ground floor of their building as a ciothing store, and the upper stories will be used for offices. Mr. Murdock will use the ground floor of his building for a saloon and for pool and billiards, and the upper stories for offices. Mr. Murdock will use the ground floor of his building for a saloon and for pool and billiards, and the upper stories for offices. The basement will be used for a tensorial shop and bath rooms. The buildings that were on Mr. Murdock's land, one was sold to the Rouche Bros. and moved to their land a short distance cast, and the other, which was occupied by his saloon and billiard hall, was moved around on the street west of Main and just north of the Logan house.

Logan city and Cache valley never looked more beautiful than now, and no one can see them and fall to admit that they are the most beautiful city and valley and the most productive in Utah.

One of the sights of interest to the visi-One of the sights of interest to the visitor as well as the resident is the agricultural college, located just east of the town and on the second flat overlooking the city of Logan and the whole valley of Cache. Only one wing of the building is as yet built, but that is imposing and shows up from a long distance. When the building is completed it will be one of the grand buildings of the territory, and one all can be proud of. One hundred acres of land given to the territory by the city and county comprises the agricultural farm and grounds, which, under the supervision of Prof. Sanborn, have been plowed, seeded and fenced, and vastly improved in other ways. The citizens of this county feel they have the finest institution in the terways. The citizens of this county feel they have the finest institution in the territory, and could not be induced to exchange it for the reform school, insane asylum or any other institution in the land. I suppose Ogden and Prove feel towards the reform school and the asylum as the citizens here do regarding the agricultural college—that they would not "swap" them for any other institution within the gift of the territory. Well, it is a blessing to get what you want and feel satisfied; and we surely do feel satisfied with what we have, remembering, too, that the institution does not belong alone to the people of this county, but to the citizens of the whole territory. I would advise all visiting Logan to go and see the college, for it is something worth seeing.

As you are aiready aware, R. K. Thomas has fixed up the old hall and opened out with a fine line of dry goods, clothing and gents' furnishing goods, which Mr. Fred Simmons, who is in charge, informs me will be sold cheaper than the people here have been used to buying goods. Two years after the old hall was built, Mr. Thomas celebrated his wedding, which was twenty-five years ago. He auticipates erecting a While I write, the usual runaway occurs.

Mr. T. B. Cardon's furniture team overturns the wagon on Third street and passes at a frightful speed down Main and First streets with the front part of the running rears, and end up their mad career in Mr. Irvir's lane.

A special to the Journal to-day states that Judge Henderson ruled that the city could pay the excess above the legal indebtedness incurred by the old city council. This decision settles an unpleasant question that has been hanging live for some time, and which has, no doubt, had a dampainr effect on the town. There will be no live for moderately.

one sorry that the matter has been finally settled, and a normal condition of things restored. Don't get the idea that the mistake made by the old city council was a fatal one, as some of the papers would have the people believe, for it was not, as is shown from Judge Henderson's decision. From this decision, if a correct one, I am led to believe that some one has taken a wrong view of the true status of the situation. It is well that he did.

Improvement seems to be the order of the day, many stores being altered and others built, R. K. Thomas, of Salt Lake, starting very soon on his new building.

Many brick residences are also under way.

In Denver the tourist is given to understand that Colorado owns the Rocky mountains and no wonder if he thinks so. Yet Pike's peak presents no such grand an appearance as the Wasatch, although it is 2,000 feet higher than the Twin peaks over looking Salt Lake. Guessing at the population is in full swing here also. "How much is Ogden!" asked a man of me the other day. "Why, I don't know, "I said "Why do you ask!" "Well, we heard the census man lived up there and they have some pretty live pushers, haven't they!" I smiled.

Talking of pushers reminds me to say something about the influence which is being thrown on the town through healthy combinations amongst property owners on the same streets. The drones are getting badly left in some places; the town is walking right away from them. The principle is becoming well recognized that addition, owners being healthy combinators.

interest to your readers. Sait Lake is now making a vigorous effort to obtain national recognition by placing her advantages and resources before the country, and while too much should not be expected all at one, only persistence is needed to achieve as much, indeed more, than others have.

Nothing strikes the observer more in Denver than the vast amount of free advertising, which the stream of twrists passing through indirectly give the place by purchases of hand books and photographs, all gotten up in a most effective style. The streets are lined with news dealers windows full of elaborately colored photographs, exhibiting almost every store in the state. Every fish pond, such as Palmer lake for instance, is magnified into an equal of Lake Como. The most grandiloquent mames are given to the veriest common blace spots. Why one might suppose Mamitou to be a world's wonder. However, this is what tourists like. They like to say we saw the Cave of the Winds or the Garden of the Gods.

Now Utah, and even immediately around Salt Lake city, has treasurs just as fine but no one seems to take them in hand. No photographs are made of them. What few photographs they are offering in Salt Lake seldom do justice to the beauty of the city, and the glory of the mountains. It would be money well speut if a subscription were taken up to have Salt Lake done by the same man who has made Colorado famous. His name is well known to all old Denverites.
